

Call for grants applications for the Doctoral Programme in Network and Information Technologies and the Doctoral Programme in Education and ICT (e-learning)

The extended deadline for applications for the Doctoral Programme in Network and Information Technologies is September 7th, 2014. The extended deadline for applications for the Doctoral Programme in Education and ICT (e-learning) is October 5th, 2014.

The UOC is offering three grants for each of these doctoral programmes for 2014/2015 academic year.

The UOC is offering three grants to study on the Doctoral Programme in Network and Information Technologies and three for the Doctoral Programme in Education and ICT (e-learning). To be eligible for the UOC Doctoral Theses Grants Programme students must be full-time and physically present on the University's premises.

The maximum duration of the grants is four years. Grants require annual renewal. Renewal is contingent on the students benefitting from such grants achieving the training and research objectives established in each case. One of these objectives is to complete the organised research period within a maximum of three years. Another is to carry out research papers derived from the doctoral thesis.

The programme will offer the possibility to develop Industrial Doctorates, with grants for the best applicants with agreements with companies. Doctoral students undertaking an industrial doctorate will have a university supervisor and a tutor at the company.

The Universitat Oberta de Catalunya (Open University of Catalonia, UOC) is a fully accredited online university based in Barcelona and serving over 60,000 students worldwide. The University welcome doctoral students who want to develop their research in a highly qualified and international setting and on a doctoral programme that forms part of the Bologna process.

Prospective applicants can find information on the application procedure, and the content and organization of the doctoral programme on the website.
